

Scenario:

You are looking for a partner who shares the same interests as you. You are a therapist who enjoys boating, cats, hiking, and eating expensive steaks.

Task #1: Add at least three of your interests to the app.

Task #2: Connect with someone who shares at least two of your interests.

Task #3: Navigate to the home menu from the message menu.

Notes:

What changes should you make?

- There is currently no to remove interests once added.
- There is no “back” button.
- Clearer method, like color change, when an interest is being filtered out.
- There would 100% need to be a first time use tutorial due to the design leaning towards minimal clutter

What do you need to keep the same?

- The UI itself is simple and uncluttered
- Being able to filter out interests was received well
- The dropdown menu automatically changing when filtering the minimum number of matches is nice, though there is no clear explanation in the app itself that this is what is happening.
